EDUCATING THOSE WHO SERVE

DRIVEN TO SERVE

A Marine Corps officer founded American Military University (AMU) in 1991 to provide military personnel with portable, relevant, and affordable education. Today our mission extends to those in defense, national security, public safety, and related communities. Whether you want to deepen your knowledge in your field or explore new horizons, there's a place for you here.

A BETTER, STRONGER YOU

You're driven to protect, to serve, to make the world a better place. We're driven to help you succeed. At AMU, you'll join other motivated professionals who know it takes hard work, bravery, and persistence to dream big, to learn, and to grow. We know you'll never stop believing in a brighter future, and we stand ready to help you continue your education and climb the ladder toward a better, stronger you.

TRANSFER-CREDIT FRIENDLY

We work to ensure you get all the credit you deserve for prior military or public safety academy training, including POST, FLETA, BLET, or IFSAC® training. We also consider ACE-evaluated training and credits by exam. You can earn up to 90 transfer credits toward a bachelor's degree.

ACCREDITED AND RECOGNIZED

AMU is part of American Public University System, which is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission (hlcommission.org). Our programs in accounting, business, emergency and disaster management, fire science, health information management, nursing, public health, and sports management have also earned specialty accreditation. Visit AMUonline.com/FastFacts to learn more about our accreditation.

EXPERT FACULTY

Many of AMU's 1,700+ faculty are former public safety or national security leaders. They bring their field-tested skills and strategies into the classroom to enrich your learning.

ESTABLISHED PARTNERSHIPS

We value our trusted partnerships with public safety organizations like the Fraternal Order of Police and ASIS International, among others. By partnering with key organizations, AMU empowers individuals to fearlessly pursue their education and and their career goals. Contact us to find out if your organization or employer is partnered with AMU.
