

Safety in the Home

Safety and Wandering Prevention Checklist

Help keep your loved one with autism safe by considering the following:

Safety in the nome
	Use visual aids in the home to set up boundaries for your child (suggested placement: doors, windows, kitchen appliances, etc.).
	Secure your home and yard (look into installing door and window exit alarms).
	Monitor any changes in home security or routines.
Safety in the Community
	Alert your trusted neighbors by informing them of your child's habits, triggers and potential to wander. See Neighbor Alert form
	Provide a safety plan to your child's school, camps and other community programs and alert them of wandering tendencies. School Alert/IEP Letter
	Introduce your child to law enforcement, fire, and EMS personnel in your community and provide more information on autism and wandering. See Wandering Tips for First Responders
	Alert first responders with a written document describing your child's wandering tendencies. See Autism Elopement Alert Form
	Consider safety products like wearable forms of ID with identifying information and alert of autism diagnosis.
	Display autism alert window decal to alert first responders your child has autism and may not respond to verbal commands.
	Consider a locating device or enrolling in emergency locating services like Project Lifesaver.

Teaching Safety

Work on a safety plan with your child to teach them how to keep themselves out of harm's way. See Family Wandering Emergency Plan
Create teaching stories and visual aids.
Keep identification on your child (wearable ID or information cards).
Create a safety plan and goals with your child's behavioral team.
Enroll your child in swimming and water safety lessons.
Monitor and document your child's progress and any challenges or changes you observed. See Safety Log

To access other Safety information referenced here, go to autismspeaks.org/tool-kit/autism-safety-kit

