STAR POWER

On December 7, 1941, the USS Arizona was bombed during the Japanese air raid on Pearl Harbor. The battleship sank in just nine minutes, and more than 70 years later, the deck of the ship still lies just six feet below the surface of the sea. The lives of the 1,177 sailors and Marines who died in the Arizona attack are commemorated at a poignant memorial that was built out over the water, running across the ship's sunken hull below. Accessible only by boat, the memorial contains the ship's bell, one of its anchors, and a shrine room displaying the names of the men who lost their lives that tragic day.

WAIKIKI BEACH

Long before it became a top destination for surfers and sunbathers from around the world, Waikiki (translated from Hawaiian as "spouting fresh water") was a cherished vacation retreat for Hawaiian royalty. In the 1800s, the royals would surf here on an early type of longboard. Today, Waikiki is one of the most well-known beach resort towns in the world. Each year it plays host to surfing competitions, hula dancing, and outrigger canoe races.
