ARCADE GAME HISTORY ON FISHERMAN'S WHARF

There's a really cool place I like to take the kids on Fisherman's Wharf called the Musée Mécanique. It's a museum that has all the old arcade games they used to have at Playland at the Beach, which was an amusement park out by the ocean from 1928 to 1972. The museum is awesome. It has Laffing Sal, which is this creepy old mechanical clown that laughs as you walk in. And it has all the old-school arcade games, not computerized ones, which you can put quarters in and play. It's a super cool place to take kids, because the ones who are really into video games can actually see what it was like to play arcade games back then.

OLD SACRAMENTO

28 acres make up Old Sacramento's historic waterfront. As the first booming business district in California, it was the site where the founding of the Transcontinental Railroad and the terminus of the Pony Express happened. Today, Old Sacramento thrives as a shopping and entertainment district for visitors near and far.
