Take in this tour’s highlights

Madrid

Delight your taste buds in a tasting of churros con chocolate, where you’ll do as the Spaniards do and dip your warm, cinnamon-covered churros sticks in rich, melted chocolate. Drooling yet?

Embark on a tour with a local guide who will show you some top tourist sights while focusing on the famous Spanish flavors and flourishing foodie culture in their city.

Enjoy exploration time in Mercado de Antón Martín, a three-story food market filled with all kinds of dishes and delights in an atmosphere loved by locals and visitors alike.

Visit a Manchego cheese farm to see firsthand how this famous Spanish sheep’s cheese is crafted. Meet the sheep, learn the complete process, and then have a taste of the end results.

Toledo

On your day trip to the picturesque old-world village of Toledo, take a tour with a local guide to see two awe-inspiring churches that date back to the 13th century: the Toledo Cathedral, considered an iconic example of the Spanish Gothic style, and the Church of Santo Tomé, known for its Mudéjar tower.

Stop for a tasting of marzipan, a renowned local treat made with sugar and almonds.

Enjoy dinner with your group at a restaurant in town before leaving Toledo.

Seville

The best way to explore a city? With a side of small bites, of course. Embark on a guided tapas tour through the trendy neighborhoods of Alfalfa, Soho Benita, and La Alameda to see—and taste—all that Seville is known for.

Visit the Royal Alcázar, once an Islamic-era citadel in the 10th century that was, over the ages, expanded into an awe-inspiring palace with lavishly decorated grounds.

In the historic, hidden-gem neighborhood of Barrio di Triana, participate in a cooking class with an expert chef. Learn how to make a classic Spanish dish like paella or gazpacho, then enjoy the dinner you prepared.

Costa del Sol region

Travel to the sunny countryside of southern Spain for a “Spirit of Andalusia” experience. Immerse yourself in the food and farming culture as you tour a farm growing almonds or olives and enjoy a traditional meal with local residents in their home.
