A CITY OF MANY FIRSTS

When we visit Boston, I always emphasize how many firsts there were in the city. With the Boston Common you have the first public park in the country. You have Boston Latin, which was the first high school in the country. In Cambridge you have Harvard, which was the first university in the country. You have the first post office. You have the first public lending library. The first paper money was used in Boston. The first subway in the country. The first marathon, the first World Series. There's dozens more. Boston is where many elements of American culture really began.

EMPIRE STATE BUILDING

Built in only 410 days—12 days ahead of schedule—the Empire State Building was the world's tallest building for 40 years and is still one of New York City's most popular and recognizable landmarks. Its 1930s art deco spire can be easily spotted from hundreds of miles away, but you may not know that the spire was originally supposed to be a docking station for zeppelins!
