Once upon a time, at the bright young age of 21, an irreverent and enterprising New York socialite named Lilly eloped with publishing mogul and citrus heir Peter Pulitzer. Ditching the city for sunny Florida, the couple embarked on a glamorous and colorful life in Palm Beach. In need of a day job, Lilly opened a simple juice stand in 1959. She soon transformed her citrus-stained clothing into a line of brightly colored shift dresses in an array of cheery prints. Her designs quickly became the unofficial uniform of America's splashy resort towns. Fast forward fifty-plus years and Lilly Pulitzer's prints and colors continue to inspire all to lead a colorful life and live happily ever after.
